Some of the finest live talent in the country is converging on the Spotted Cow with punk, rock and indie highlighting some great entertainment

THE Spotted Cow has well and truly arrived as a live venue to be reckoned with in Queensland.

Feeling as confident as ever manager Phil Coorey and promoter Michael Cook have put together an eclectic line up of musicians that would make Splendour in the Grass green with envy.

First up are rising indie rock legends Children Collide hitting the Cow Thursday, August 23, as part of their 19-date National Monument tour.

Promising to bring fans a hefty chuck of their new record, as well as their old classics – it promises to be a night to remember.

Next up comes Tim Rogers, lead singer from Australian rock band, You Am I.

His songwriting is stronger than ever and it is a chance to get up close and personal and talk all things classic rock, footy even baseball.

The final week of August sees the wonderful Lanie Lane gracing the Cow.

He possesses one of the most unique and amazing voices in the country – it'll leave the whole crowd spellbound for sure and promises to be a night no one will stop talking about soon.

September 1 sees the arrival of New Zealand punk rockers Die! Die! Die!.

Drawing on inspiration from some of the world's greatest punk rock bands like Wire, Joy Division and Bad Brains, they have harnessed that energy and combined it with a do-it-yourself attitude that has drawn praise from all over the world.

These four shows are ticketed and as a bonus the Spotted Cow will be offering a special "4 for" package that will be well and truly worth your while – contact Phillip at the Cow for details.

Thursday, 23 – Children Collide
